OUR PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT CYCLE

Our goal-driven performance management cycle is an annual process that ensures everyone is working smart across our organization. The performance management cycle reflects the industry best practice of setting clear SMART goals that are aligned to our mission and organizational strategy and tracking our achievement of those goals. Each step of the cycle is completed in our Talent System.

Performance management provides employees the opportunity to discuss and agree upon clear performance targets with their leaders, engage in continuous performance discussions and progress reviews throughout the year, and then report back on realized achievements and opportunities for future development.

GOAL DEVELOPMENT - THINK BIG, THINK GROWTH, THINK SMART

Think BIG: When setting goals, "Less is More." Define your ultimate goals, or the important results you're working to achieve, that will significantly impact the business. Goal-setting isn't the time to list every project you will work on or list your job duties.

Think GROWTH: In addition to your performance goals, make sure to also create at least 1 individual development goal. Examples of individual development goals include attending professional conferences, identifying a mentor, completing training assignments, or taking on a stretch assignment outside your normal comfort zone. People Grower Goal: All leaders should also set a People Grower goal that focuses on how they will grow and develop their team. Your People Grower goal may include how you will ensure career development, provide key experiences, or provide overall support for one or more of your employees to help them grow.

Think SMART: Well-written goals make it easier to assess progress and increase the probability of a more achievable plan. When writing goals, use the definitions below to make sure they meet the SMART criteria.

DEFINING SMART

What makes a goal SMART? When writing your goals, use the following definitions and examples to make sure it meets the SMART criteria.

	Stands for	Means	Not quite this	More like this
S	Specific	A clear, concise description of the goal that can also outline how it will be achieved	Cut costs.	Reduce controllable expenses by benchmarking spend to similar operations.
Μ	Measurable	A clear metric or measurable target that will indicate goal achievement – how much	Significant drop in controllable spend.	Reduce controllable spend by 15%.
Α	Attainable	Consideration of your control and constraints, as well as the tactics that will be used to achieve the goal – is it realistic	Reduce controllable spend by half.	Reduce controllable spend by 15%.
R	Relevant	Consideration of the relevance of the goal to team and organizational strategy – how it aligns to the bigger picture	Align: Growth X Reduce controllable spend by 15%	Align: Operational Excellence ✓ Reduce controllable spend by 15%
Т	Time-Bound	A specific deadline or target date to achieve the goal	As soon as possible.	By November 30.

CASCADE, CONTEXTUALIZE, CONNECT

Cascade – Leaders should create SMART goals that align with the mission and vision of the company and communicate these goals down to their teams. This helps ensure employees understand the connection between their work and larger organizational objectives and creates transparency behind organizational strategy.

Contextualize – It is important that employees understand how goal-achievement ties into overall measures of performance. Leaders should ensure that employees understand how their performance is being evaluated.

Connect – Employees should set their own goals that align to their manager's vision and objectives. When we understand the connection between our work and organizational success, it is empowering. Goal-setting is a time to self-identify opportunities for aligned contribution. Employees should work with their leaders during the goal-setting cascade to ensure goals are relevant and connected to the bigger picture.

SMART goals should be written for your key areas of focus and continuous improvement efforts to advance the business forward, impacting the key measures that are part of our overall company goals.

Number of SMART Goals

Based on your level in the organization, the number of goals you have may vary. Here are some general guidelines to aid in the goal-setting process. This may vary by department or function.

Senior Leader (Executive, VP)	5-7 SMART Goals
Director (Sr. Director, Director, Asst. Director)	4-5 SMART Goals
Manager (Manager, Supervisor, Team Lead)	3-5 SMART Goals
Individual Contributor	2-3 SMART Goals

SMART DEVELOPMENT GOALS

In addition to SMART goals aligned to business objectives, it is just as important to set goals for your individual development. If you are a leader, you should collaborate closely with members of your team to support their individual development, as well. These development goals should focus on opportunities to grow professionally, ultimately leading to greater organizational impact and career advancement.

To begin identifying individual development opportunities, collaborate with your leader and identify the skills and abilities that are best aligned with where you would like to go in the organization. Stretch Assignments, Special Projects, Ops Visits, External Development Opportunities (i.e. conferences, workshops, certifications, etc.), Cross-Functional Discussions, Connecting with Colleagues, Mentoring, and Taking the Lead are all possibilities to continue to grow in your current role and prepare you for your next steps.

REMEMBER: These development goals should be SMART! Consider specific (S) opportunities that have measurable (M) takeaways, budget approval for any expenses associated with the development opportunity (A & R), and the timing that such events may occur (T). For example, if in discussion with your leader, you align that it is important to develop your business acumen, you may write a goal to develop a mentoring partnership with someone that excels in this area.

> SMART GOAL: Initiate a 6-month mentor relationship with Dave focused on improving my business acumen in order to make faster, more impactful decisions in my role.

When setting your annual SMART goals, it is recommended at least one (1) additional SMART goal focuses on your individual development. If you are a leader, you should set at least one People Grower goal that focuses on developing your team as well.
